A LONG CHASE

J. A. Massey, of East Durham, Wanted in North

ago a young man supposed to be J. A. Massey, of East Durham, N. C., arrived here and stopped with the Chief of Police who conducts a boarding-house. Shortly after his arrival there came letters from the Insurance Commissioner of North Carolina, stating that Massey was wanted In that State for collecting premiums on life policies which were never delivered life policies which were never delivered and offering a reward of $25 for his arrest. A telegram was sent to Raleigh stating that the man wanted was supposed to be here, and asked for a description. This was sent, but it was not accurate enough to justify an arrest. However, the authorities endeavored to keep the man under surveillance, but this morning about 10 o'clock he managed to get off and took his grip along, leaving the Chief of Police an unsettled board bill as a memento of his visit.

little has been done towards planting the spring crops.

There has been quite an epidemic of whooping cough and measles in this part of Hanover this winter, which has greatly affected the public schools. However, the new graded school here, taught by Prof. S. Whochesney and Miss Salite Gillman, of the Parmville Normal, has made fine progress.

There is a movement on foot in the county for local option. A number of peritions are being circulated asking the judge to call an election. A large number of prominent citizens have signed the petitions.

Insurance Commissioner Young says there are several warrants in North Carolina for Massey's arrest. Early this morning one of the flercest conflagrations in the history of that town destroyed the store of Clem & Company and the dwelling house of Charles E. Edmonson. The total loss is between 17,000 and 18,000.

During last evening while some men were in Larrick's store a muffled, but heavy, explosion took place beneath the front porch, and it is believed that this was the explosion of a bomb intended to fire Larrick's store. It did but very little damage. No clues have been found as to the perpetrators of the affair. The town is in a state of apprehensiveness, and a strict watch will be kept for the capture of suspicious persons.

The last fire in Middletown was that of January 18th, at 2 A. M., when the D. F. Edmondson property was burned, destroying property was destroyed.

LYNCH STATION, VA., February 18. The cold snap has given a fresh impetus to the wood shipping business, and many cars are loaded daily here for the Lynch-burg trade, though the price to the shipper is not increased in proportion to the rates charged the city consumer.

Notice is given that on April 1st two rural free delivery mail routes will be established from this place. These will be the first for Campbell county.

Some people of an optimistic turn can almost see our projected furniture factory in operation. The matter of erecting such a plant is being looked into by some of our business men.

Farmers are late with their work. So far as we hear no plowing has been done and few plant beds burned. They have been quite busy recently stripping and shipping tobacco, and complaints are made that prices for most grades are disappointing.

LONDON BILL OFFERED

The Justice Whistle Bill, After a Long Argument, in Which an Attack is Made on Railroad Attorneys, is Voted Down in the Senate.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) RALEIGH, N. C., February 18 .- In the louse of Representatives this morning there was a continuation of argument or Watts whiskey bill and substitutes Mr. Morphew offered the London bill, now pending in the Senate, as a substitute speaking at length in its favor. Mr. Self offered a substitute for Mr. Morphew's substitute, providing that prohibition shall not be a condition in any county until the people vote on the subject. Mr. Watts spoke in support of his bill, and called the previous question on all substitutes and amendments, saying that it might be necessary to go into a committee of the whole before disposition of the bill was finally made. Two-thirds of the members explained their votes, the ballot result-finally made. Two-thirds of the members explained their votes, the ballot resulting—ayos, 41; noce, 72. Further action was deferred until 8 o'clock to-night.

In the Senate Mr. London introduced a bill for the relief of the Soldiers' Home by appropriating $1,200 annually for repairs and maintenance. Many others were introduced, all local in character.

Mr. Justice's whistie bill, which had been on the calendar twice before was put on readings for final action. It is the bill "requiring engineers to give timely warning to persons walking on the track of the approach of trains." Mr. McMullan and Mr. Justice argued in support of the bill, and Messrs. Henderson, Glenn, Travis, Gilliam in opposition. Opposition was on the ground principally that it would impede fast travel, and be unjust to the railroads. There was a sharp till between Messrs. Justice and Glenn, regarding "railroad lawyers," Mr. Glenn scoring Mr. Justice for what he termed unwarranted reflection on the honor of that class of lawyers; his tribute to whom called forth enthusiastic applause on the floor and in lobbies and gaileries. The bill was voted down—28 to 15. Mr. Justice charged that railroad attorneys would resort to anything to gain their suits.

The House of Representatives devoted three hours to discussion of the Watts bill to-night, but did not come to a vote on the bill itself. The Murphy bill, which came up as a substitute, was voted down—20 to 76. The London bill, which Mr. Morphew had introduced as a substitute, was also voted down—40 to 65. The Morton amendment, for each county to ratify the Watts bill before the act becomes effective therein, was first car-The Morton amendment, for each county to ratify the Watts bill before the act becomes effective therein, was first carried by three majority, then before the ballot was announced four changed their votes, so that the amendment was lost. Mr. Doubton's amendment, allowing the manufacture of brandy and wine in the country, to be sold only in packages of not less than five gallons, was adopted. The Watts amendments, providing for elections in towns on the question of manufacture of liquors, establishment of saloons or dispensarios, came up. Mr. Smith, of Gates, offered an amendment that the same privilege of voting on these questions be extended to country people, and in the midst of a speech by Mr. Smith a recess was taken until 10 o'clock to-morrow.

Governor Aycock received a request to-day from the Secretary of War to select the location for the $5,000 monuments to General Francis Nash and General William Lee Davidson. There is no intimation yet as to the probable location. Quilford battle-ground has been most prominently mentioned.

At the residence of Assistant Postmaster C. G. Burton there was a happy mar-riage last night. Miss Stona Vanco Wrightsell, of Liberty, and Mr. James Edward Cole, of Colesburg, Randolph county, secretary of the Colesburg Manufacturing Company, were united in the bonds of matrimony, in the presence of a few invited friends, by Rev. S. G. Turrentine. It was not a runaway match, but the bride, who was visiting intimate friends here, adopted this mode of escaping the wear and worry of a neighborhood home wedding.

After the ceremony the bridal party were tendered a delightful wedding supper by Mr. W. F. Clegg, at his hotel, the guests being the host, Dr. and Mrs. Turrentine, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. R. Waddy's body was buried from his residence, in Duke Street, at 8 o'clock this afternoon. There was a great crowd of friends at the house and at the Second Presbyterian Church to show their sympathy and their respect for the admirable man.

The services were conducted by Rev. J. Ernest Thacker, assisted by Rev. Dr. B. D. Tucker, of the Episcopal Church. After the services the body was buried in Finwood Cemetery in the presence of a large number of friends. Among these were the employes of the post-office, whom the department had allowed to leave their duties. The office was closed between 1 and 3 o'clock. The employes sent three handsome and elaborate floral designs, representing 'Gates Ajar,' a cross and a sheaf of wheat, as a testimonial of their esteem and affection for the deceased. The pall-bearers were as follows: Colonel A. M. Higgins, Colonel T. J. Nottingham, O. J. Egerton, George Chamberiain, H. L. Page, W. F. Irvine, J. R. Doles and Charles Otts Barron.

The remaining tw one for the State and the other for the defendant, will speak to-morrow ing. Judge Neal will deliver the charge and the case will be given to the twelve men chosen to decide Bishop's fate

The usual crowd was present in the court room this morning sometime before

The usual crowd was present in the court room this moming sometime before the sheriff convened the court, and the usual morbid interest was manifested in the proceedings. Generally speaking a legal argument is not the most entertaining address one could hear, but circumstances alter cases. The sensational facts attendant upon the slaying of Wilson and the prominence of the defendart, added to the excellence of the speaches to-day, served to awaken great interest. Standing room in the court room was at a premium, and the crowd of the curious extended out into the corridor, Attorney Roy Kirkpatrick opened the argument and led off for the State, Mr. Kirkpatrick made an eloquent speech, and he received many compliments from his fellow-lawyers and others on his excellent effort. He was followed by Attorney C. W. Tillett, who made an earnest appeal for his client, Blahop. Solicitor Wobb then spoke for the State, and he was followed in turn by attorney Guthrie for the defense.

Speculation as to what the jury will do is rife. None are so projudiced against the prisoner of murder in the Lecond degree. The drift of the sentiment is that the verdet will be either manistagether or justifiable homicide. The counsel for the defense are doing all in their power to convince the jury that Blishop was in imminent danger of belay acided from blows of the stick in the hands of Wilson. Bishop testified that this is what he thought, and that a would not for worlds have fired had he no, thought he. worlds have fired had no lot. thought his life was in danger.

To-morrow morning Colonel H. C.
Jones will conclude for the defense and Mr. 19. T. Cansier will coles the argument for the prosecution.
